EASTERN NEWS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

A Letter Extraordinary.

NEW YORK Jan 3.—Capt Franche of the steamer Salier arrived yesterday. He was the bearer of a letter to the German consul here and has instructions to permit no one but the proper authorities to board or leave the vessel until the consul had read the letter. It was written by the Bremerhafen authorities during the intense excitement after the dynamite explosion under the impression that possibly some traces that would lead to additional facts in regard to the explosion might be obtained on the Salier. Nothing had been discovered. One passenger speaking of the explosion says: "I was leaning against the mast of the Mosele enjoying the scene when suddenly I fell flat on my face and heard a terrific noise. I thought the boiler of the Mosele had exploded, and then imagined it must have been the boiler of the steam tug. Pieces of wood, iron, glass, and parts of human bodies were falling around and upon me. The scene was awful."

Chas. F Mueller, of Milwaukee who was on the Mosele at the time of the explosion says he was blown down the stairs of the cabin, and on recovering rushed forward. He saw the deck covered with dead bodies and pools of blood. The bodies were mostly stripped of their clothing; some were perfectly naked. I covered several of the dead, and then ran and saw a Hebrew on a chair stripped of his clothing and apparently wounded. His head was falling back and he appeared to be suffering. I took some bedding from a trunk which had been burst open by the explosion and made a comfortable seat for him. A few minutes after he died. A sailor kindly brought him some water but he could not drink it. I then saw a young lady who was screaming for help, and who was denuded of all her clothing from her waist. I covered her with some sheeting. She had a wound in her back, where she had been struck with a bar of iron torn from the deck railing.

Alarm of Fire and a Panic in a Church.

BOSTON, Jan. 3.—While about 1,000 children were attending Sunday school in the basement of St. Mary's Catholic church yesterday the drapery of the statue of the Virgin Mary took fire. Some of the children raised the cry of fire and a panic ensued, they rushed for the door to escape. The teachers promptly closed the doors of the school and the burned drapery having been torn from the statue, the fire was extinguished and the children resumed their exercises. Meanwhile the alarm of fire in the basement reached the congregation worshipping above and with one accord the people rushed to two doors which open into the street. These choked up instantly as did also the narrow stairs leading from the galleries. Many persons in the galleries leaped from the windows. Many women fainted, and it was not until after a large part of the congregation escaped to the street that the cause of the panic was ascertained, and quiet restored. There was no loss of life, but there were several casualties.

Louisiana Legislature.

NEW ORLEANS Jan 3.—The Legislature met to day. Everything passed off quietly. The House after receiving the Governor's message adjourned out of respect to the memory of L. H. Soutlard and [illegible] Plenon, deceased members. Gov Kellogg's message was exceedingly elaborate. He congratulates the people on the hopeful prospects of the State which he ascribes mainly to the fact that they are now on the threshold of full fruition of those financial reforms urged by him which at the last election by an unquestioned vote of a majority of the people were engrafted on the constitution of the State.

BROOKLYN, Jan 3.—The prosecution of Loeder and Price for perjury in connection with the Tilton-Beecher case, was discontinued to-day on the application of the district attorney for a nolle prosequi before Judge Wilson in the court of sessions, the ground of motion being that affidavits of those persons were not made to be used in court, but simply to affect public opinion.

WASHINGTON CITY.

The Circular of the State Department to the European Powers.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—A Tribune Washington special says it seems pretty certain that the circular of the State Department respecting Cuban affairs did little more than call the attention of the European powers to the Spanish passage of the President's message. It is also quite certain that the European powers are of the opinion that Spain ought now to control, or abandon Cuba. The latest authentic information is that Spain in its note to the European powers concedes the justice of the position of President Grant but requests a definite period to be fixed, in which Spain can suppress the rebellion. Meanwhile a request is made that the great powers do not consider any suggestion of intervention from the United States. It is probable that some time will yet elapse before the President sends his special message on this subject to Congress.

Work on the U. S. Custom House at St. Louis Stopped.

The Times St Louis special says the supervising architect of the U S custom house has received orders from Washington to stop all work on the building for three months, and that there has been expended on the construction so far $150,000 and the walls have just reached the top of the first story. There have been numerous charges made of fraud in the construction and threats are made to bring the matter before the grand jury for investigation. Whether these charges are in any way connected with the orders received from Supervising Architect Potter, is not known.

Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Company.

WASHINGTON Jan 3.—In the suit of A F Richards and others against the Chesapeake & Ohio R R Co Judge Bond to-day in Alexandria read the opinion of the court, Chief Justice White concurring. The question before court was first a motion to dismiss the suit from the U S court for want of jurisdiction, both plaintiff and defendants being citizens of the same State; second a motion of plaintiffs themselves to be allowed to enter a common order of discontinuance that they might be able to proceed in the same court, where jurisdiction was unquestioned. Judge Bond after a full review of the case and of the action of this court heretofore announced that an order would be issued directing the receiver appointed by him Tyson to settle his accounts on, or before a day to be fixed, whereupon he will be discharged and the parties allowed to proceed in the State court according to the desire of the large majority of creditors of each class. The effect of the decision will be to place the affairs of the road in the hands of Gen Wickham the receiver appointed by the State courts. Counsel then agreed upon January 20 as the time by which their receiver must settle. It is stated that three fourths of all the creditors of the road are favorable to the foreclosure of mortgages and the settlement of the affairs of the company by the State courts in accordance with the decision of the U S court to day.

Important Decision of the Commissioner of General Land Office.

WASHINGTON Jan 3.—In the case of H W R Crouch an agricultural claimant against sundry mineral claimants involving the title to twenty acres of land near Grass Valley California the Commissioner of the General Land Office to day rendered a decision of general interest to mine owners and agriculturists. He holds that the land in question must be excluded from the Crouch preemption because, although it is not mineral land, it is of little if any value for agricultural purposes and is essential for the proper working of the deep gravel mines in the vicinity.

English Press on the United States and Spain.

LONDON Jan 3.—The Manchester Guardian's London correspondent writes as follows on the subject of Spain, Cuba and the United States: "I have been furnished with what purports to be the substance of America's Cuban note. I believe it is correct though I don't pretend to give its exact language. It recites that the general interests of humanity and commerce demand the cessation of the struggle which has been waged in Cuba for seven years. The United States are great sufferers, but are unwilling to act without the concurrence of other powers including Spain. The continuation of the attempt to govern Cuba from Madrid will be fatal to the hopes of the restoration of peace. Nevertheless Cuba belongs to Spain and a great share of the population is opposed to separation. In these circumstances a solution of the question might be found in establishing a confederation in the West Indies resembling the Canadian. Cuba and Porto Rico might be constituted a confederation with local independent rights, and a governor general to be appointed by Spain. The powers are asked to join the United States in proposing such a confederation and to aid Cuba to establish it. The abolition of slavery would however, be a necessary condition and such pressure must be brought as would make the insurgents cease warfare. This would be difficult but it could be accomplished. Secretary Fish is emphatic in denying that the United States desires the acquisition of Cuba. They only wish peace established, slavery abolished and commerce allowed to resume its course. The powers are asked to express their opinion of the proposed means of accomplishing these ends."

Deputations from the Reichstag and the Landtag will wait upon him and tender their congratulations. The Archbishop persists in his refusal to acknowledge the jurisdiction of the new ecclesiastical court or the validity of his deposition. Grain Trade in Europe.

LONDON Jan 3.—The Mark Lane Express in review of the grain trade says 1875 has unfortunately proved a year of general deficiency of quality. Barley has shown the best yield of the season, being only slightly below the average but its color has been so generally affected that its value for malting purposes is greatly reduced, perhaps 8s to 10s per quarter. Sales have been unusually dull. Oats and beans are below average but better prices paid for the latter compensate for the defect. The wheat crop has suffered most, only one eighth reaching average, while five sixths sink below it. Whatever dullness now prevails and may for a period continue our large deficiency will become more evident as the season advances. Should we have a bad spring an important advance must ensue.

When Judge Wheeler returns to the city the necessary steps will be taken for appeal. The case has excited much interest both here and abroad.

SAN FRANCISCO Jan 3.—Michael O Day was arrested to day on suspicion of having murdered a Russian sailor belonging to the schooner Behring on Saturday night. O Day who keeps a saloon near Main street, slung the sailor through the wharf gate. A few moments after the mate of the Behring recognized a voice in the exposition and heard a splash in the water. The sailor has not been seen since. O Day told contradictory stories about the occurrence and was locked up on suspicion.

MR BRISTOW'S RAID.

[From the New York Tribune.]

Mr Bristow unquestionably knew long before the open war had been declared that the government was being robbed. He urged upon Mr Douglass the necessity for a more vigorous attempt at discovery and prosecution, but found that Mr Douglass was hampered by outside influences that he was simply useless in what was now an emergency. Hence the removal of Mr Douglass and the action of Mr Bristow in taking matters into his own hands. He sent agents and detectives without the knowledge of the revenue bureau to every city in the country where large quantities of spirits were being manufactured, who by rigid observation accumulated masses of evidence.

The documentary evidence against Joyce and McDonald the Secretary transmitted to the President, but he refused to be convinced and steadfastly held to the declaration that his friend McDonald was an innocent man, incapable of corruption. Mr Bristow however kept on until he had effected preparations for the great raid. McDonald becoming alarmed at the situation, went to Washington taking $10,000 wrung from two distillers with him "to wipe out the past," as shown in the recent trial. Where this money went will probably be developed in an approaching trial. Up to this time the President was probably convinced of the innocence of his Secretary and of McDonald. The latter tried to induce him to remove Mr. Bristow, saying it would be to the interest of the party to do so, hiding the real reason. So great was President Grant's infatuation that he still did not suspect McDonald's guilt. McDonald demanded that Secretary Bristow be turned out and that he (McDonald) be assigned the duty of investigating suspicious affairs in his district. President Grant explained that to remove Mr Bristow at that time would be unwise as it would be construed into an attempt to prevent the exposure of frauds.

McDonald then went to Mr Bristow determined on a bold course to accomplish his end. He told Mr Bristow he knew his game and that he had a big job on hand and he abruptly asked the Secretary: "Do you intend to indict the folks out in my district?" "I certainly do if there is evidence of guilt, from the highest to the lowest." "Am I to understand that you intend to indict me?" "You should so understand it, if there exists any evidence to connect you with the frauds." "Well then I would like to see you do it." McDonald explained at length the obstacles in the way of the Secretary and then made a proposition of compromise as follows: "I will agree to hand you my resignation and to prevent any further crooked running in my district if you will agree to let bygones be bygones and not to prosecute the balance." Mr Bristow replied: "I have determined that if I can secure evidence against you, you must go to the penitentiary." "I go to the penitentiary? You'll have a nice job at that game, but what of my proposition?" The Secretary said: "If the President will pardon you I shall say nothing more." McDonald was still unsatisfied and importunate and the Secretary agreed to talk with the President about the matter. McDonald wrote his resignation and left. The Secretary subsequently explored as justification of his course that he had tried every other means to convince President Grant of McDonald's guilt and had despaired of accomplishing that end and finally had recourse to McDonald's own confession. McDonald went to the President and told the story of his guilt, and the scene was an exciting one. Gen Grant gave no answer to McDonald's plea for pardon. The seizures in St. Louis were made while the Democrat came out with its disclosure; and it was too late for attempts at concealment.

The article states that when the dispatches sent to St. Louis by Gen Babcock were found they were taken to the White House by Mr Pierrepont. Gen Babcock admitted writing them and there was a lively breeze over the matter. Mr Dyer was sent for and left St Louis for Washington hastily. On his arrival he was met by the Attorney General, who stated that the evidence against Gen Babcock should first be submitted to him (the Attorney General) that he might judge of the propriety of taking it to the grand jury. Mr Dyer saw Mr Bristow. The latter sent for Mr Pierrepont and reminded him that he was not the grand jury and would not be permitted to exercise its functions. Soon after Gen Babcock was indicted by the grand jury.

REPUBLICAN HONESTY.

[From the Cincinnati Gazette.]

If the Democratic majority in Congress can do more in the way of investigating, exposing and punishing frauds on the part of Republican officials than the Republican party itself has done it will be kept pretty busy during the winter and spring. The fact is, there never was a party in power in this country that did so much hard honest work in the way of purging itself of corruptionists, as the Republican party. For this it deserves credit, and in this way it has merited public confidence. It would have been better had there been no corruption to expose but unfortunately this was not the case, but no man in office, guilty of crime or misconduct, was too high to be brought to the bar of justice or the bar of public opinion and dealt with as he deserved. The latest evidence on this point is the indictment under the direction of a law officer, appointed by the President, of the President's private secretary—a man who has been very close to him and very high in his confidence. The Republican party might have covered up the faults of its officials, but it preferred to expose them and to retire to private life or send to the penitentiary those who abused their trusts or violated public sentiment. This is not the way Democrats do things. Take the salary grabbers for example. These were rejected by Republicans, but Democratic grabbers are not in disfavor in the Democratic party. One of them was candidate for Speaker of the House and was not objected to on that ground. Another was elected clerk of the House. Had these things been done by Republicans, there would have been a great fuss made about it and very properly, too, but on the part of Democrats it is accepted as a matter of course.

An attempt was made to destroy the steamer Ariel some years ago. Captain Ludlow, who then commanded the Ariel received, as he passed the lighthouse on his way to sea a telegram from the agents, Messrs Ruppel & Son saying simply, "Stop the ship." He intended paying no attention to this quasi absurd demand, but on the representation of the European agent of the line who happened to be on board he did stop the ship, and the two went to the lighthouse when they soon received the news from the Bremen agents that two cases declared as silks, of which the marks were given were stored in the after hold and which, instead of silks, were filled with combustibles and a clock work arrangement to set them on fire when the ship was at sea.

On searching the cases were found, and were as described above. They were sent to Bremen, where they served to convict the guilty parties who soon after were found and arrested.

It seems the mechanic employed to make the boxes and clockwork became conscience stricken, and at the last moment "peached" on his employes, who proved to be a father and son, whose motive was, after insuring these cases heavily in Vienna and elsewhere, to recover the amount of insurance.

The father committed suicide soon after arrest, and the son is now in prison in Bremen for life.

The mechanic lives now on Staten Island.

The New York Times of recent date, is responsible for the following: A comical incident occurred before Judge Lawrence in Part III of the Supreme Court, yesterday. The case of Lowenstein against Lowenthal, was on trial, and the jury returned to the court room after a long and serious deliberation upon the merits of the action, which was brought to recover about $700 for the sale of some damaged lace. The clerk of the court put the usual inquiry: "Gentlemen of the jury, have you agreed on a verdict?" "We have," said the foreman. "How say you," queried the clerk "do you find for the plaintiff or for the defendant?" The foreman in response handed up to Judge Lawrence a roll of paper on which was written: "We, the jury unanimously agreed that we cannot find either for the plaintiff or for the defendant." The judge as soon as he could recover from his astonishment told the jury that he would discharge them from a further consideration of the case.

THE INDISPENSABLE BANNER FOR 1876.—The indispensable condition of success in 1876 is therefore evident. It is that the candidate shall be in himself proof that there will be no continuation of those things which have so radically alienated immense numbers who would prefer to vote the Republican ticket but who will not vote it merely because it is the Republican ticket. Republicans ought to see clearly that as Grant himself could not possibly be re-elected, so none of the Grant group can be elected. It is the administration which has endangered and defeated the party, and any candidate who would represent substantially a continuance of the administration in the general character and spirit that we have mentioned would be surely defeated. The signs of the times upon this point are absolutely unmistakable. The only man whom the Republicans can elect is some man whom the administration coterie would strongly oppose because his career and character would be the guarantee of a total change in the tone of administration.

This pretty fragment on the unfinished prayer must have been written by some fond mother who has lisped the prayer to the nodding little one:

Now I lay — repeat it darling —
I lay me, lisped the tiny lips
Of my daughter kneeling bending
O'er her folded finger tips.

Down to sleep — To sleep, she murmured
And the curly head bent low
I pray the Lord, I gently added,
You can say it all I know.

Pray the Lord —the sound came faintly
Fainter still— my soul to keep
Then the tired head fairly nodded
And the child was fast asleep.

But the dewy eyes half opened
When I clasped her to my breast
And the dear voice softly whispered
Mamma, God knows all the rest

It is said that during Jackson's administration a little fellow of a postmaster in Kentucky kept annoying the friends of "Old Hickory" by swearing most profusely against the general. His case was reported several times and his removal called for most earnestly. General Jackson, after continued importunity, was led to examine the case of his cussing enemy. He found it a very virulent case, but he also learned that the reviler had fought under him at New Orleans. The postmaster was not removed. When asked what it meant the old general replied: "Any man who fought the British at New Orleans has my permission to be postmaster and cuss me for the balance of his days."—Williamsport (Pa) Sun (Dem)

Spain admits the reasonableness of the President's views respecting the suppression of the Cuban insurrection, but thinks the Great Powers of Europe ought to give their time to restore tranquility in Cuba before they listen to any proposition from the United States of intervention between the insurgents and herself. In connection with this request for time the Great Powers may remember that the Cuban insurrection has been going on for six years and Spain seems as far from a satisfactory settlement of it as she has ever been since the beginning of the difficulty.

DECISION IN THE U S DISTRICT COURT BY JUDGE DEADY.

U S District Court—District of Oregon

MONDAY JAN 3 1876

The United States v Andrew J Harmison, alias Dan Smith—Indictment for embezzling a mail pouch and stealing an article of value therefrom.

DEADY J

This is an application by the defendant to have his sentence reconsidered.

Late in the evening of Tuesday the 21st ult, the defendant was found guilty of embezzling a mail pouch from the U S mail on the stage between Roseburg and Levins station, in Southern Oregon and stealing three cans of gold dust therefrom. On the next morning the case of the United States against this defendant and Sarah J Montgomery for receiving the same dust knowing it to have been so stolen was called for trial. The defendant then asked leave to withdraw his plea of not guilty to the second indictment and plead autrefois convict thereto. Leave was granted, and after argument the plea was held good, upon the ground that the thief could not receive stolen goods from himself and that his receipt and possession of the property as such, was an integral part of the crime of larceny, of which he had been already convicted. But to enable the defendant to maintain this plea of autrefois convict and thereby avoid a second trial for a part of the same offence, he was first compelled to ask the court to pass sentence upon him and give judgment of conviction in his case without further enquiry into the circumstances of it. Accordingly the court sentenced him to eight years imprisonment in the penitentiary, and ordered the execution of the sentence to be stayed until the further order of the court.

It is the settled practice of this court where a discretion is given it, as to the extent of the punishment to be imposed upon a party to hear evidence of any circumstances which may properly be taken into view, either in mitigation or aggravation of such punishment. A similar mode of proceeding is prescribed for the State courts in like cases in §§ 204, 207 of the Or Crim Code.

The term at which this judgment was given, not having yet passed the power of the court to set it aside or modify it, is undoubted. The Supreme Court in ex parte Lange 18 Wall 167 announce the general rule upon the subject in these words:

"The general power of the court over its own judgments orders and decrees, in both civil and criminal cases during the existence of the term at which they were first made, is undeniable."

On Thursday the 30th ult and immediately after the trial of the indictment against Montgomery had resulted in a verdict of Not Guilty, the defendant made this application, and it appearing from the facts in the case that the defendant by no fault of his own had been deprived of the opportunity to offer evidence of circumstances in mitigation of his punishment, it was granted. On the reconsideration of the motion to fix the punishment, the defendant was examined as a witness on his own behalf, and cross examined by counsel for the United States. Substantially the defendant testifies that the pouch containing the cans of gold dust was taken from the stage at Canyonville, on the night of Tuesday, October 19, 1874, while the same was entrusted to his care, as driver, by Jack Montgomery, that a short time before, while the defendant was under the influence of liquor, Montgomery proposed the robbery to him and induced him to consent to it, that it was afterwards accomplished by the defendant's leaving this through pouch, which passed over his drive on Tuesday, and was understood to contain gold dust from east of the Cascade mountains, on the front boot, where Montgomery could and did purloin it, while the defendant was in the saloon near by; that afterwards and on Friday night of the same week Montgomery got on the defendant's stage at Canyonville then going north, with the pouch he had concealed in the vicinity in the meantime, and carried it a distance of 12 or 14 miles to Oak Grove station where he and the ostler, Wiley Cardwell, cut it open and rifled it of its contents, that the booty obtained was disposed of by giving Cardwell the pouch containing one can of dust and a roll of greenbacks, while Montgomery and defendant appropriated the other three cans of dust—the whole being left for the time being with Cardwell at the barn at Oak Grove station.

His account of the custody of these three cans of dust prior to his leaving the State in July last it is not necessary to repeat in detail, as it has already been published. But it accords in the main with his assertion that Montgomery was the controlling spirit in the larceny. At last, the defendant, having learned that he and Montgomery were suspected, determined to get away from the country, and having obtained from Montgomery what he says was less than his share of the dust he absconded with it and proceeding to Philadelphia exchanged it for $1,261 20 in gold coin giving his name at the time as William G Gilbert of Lewiston Idaho. Since the defendant was on the stand the Postal Agent has given me a telegram which he received from James Pollock superintendent of the mint dated Dec 30 1875 in answer to one sent by him on that subject, from which it appears that William G Gilbert, on July 28, 1875, deposited 70 ounces of Idaho gold and received for it, on July 30, 1875, $1,266 29 in gold coin.

This sufficiently identifies the transaction, and also suggests that as there was not to exceed 120 ounces of dust in the 3 cans, that the defendant "got away" with fully his share of the plunder. Yet it is equally apparent he did not get it all and it is more than probable that the remainder was left in the hands of the other party to the theft.

If the whole amount of the dust contained in the 3 cans had been in the control or possession of the defendant or Mrs Montgomery at the time of their flight it is but reasonable to suppose that they would have carried it with them and that it would have been exchanged for coin at the mint when the 70 ounces were.

It is not necessary to speak absolutely as to the truth of this story. There was much in the manner of the witness and the details of his narration as tested by the known facts of the case, which was well calculated to gain credence for his statement. For instance it always appeared singular that the defendant should have left the fourth can of dust in the sack by mistake supposing that he cut it open and searched it as stated by Cardwell, but the defendant's statement concerning the matter is not open to such criticism. According to that this can of dust found in the sack was left with it as the share of the person to whom the sack and stolen property was committed at the time of the larceny but afterwards it may be supposed it was sunk in the river with the sack for greater security and to avoid detection.

On the whole and for the purposes of the question before the court I am constrained to regard the defendant, however guilty as neither the sole nor principal party in the transaction. Still upon his own admission and in contemplation of law he is guilty of embezzling the pouch and stealing the dust therefrom. What he assisted another to do he is technically guilty of doing himself.

When sentence was pronounced upon the defendant for four years imprisonment for each offence the court had no time or opportunity to examine into the matter and supposing he would not be called for sentence until after the trial of the indictment for receiving the dust and probably not until after the disposition of a motion for a new trial I had not given the matter any particular consideration.

§ 5467 of the R S upon which this indictment is found is far from being as clear and distinct as it should be. But I think it probable and so charged the jury that the legislature intended to make the act of taking a sack from the mail and abstracting its contents two separate and distinct offences although as in this case done by the same person and at the same time. There is no doubt but that the Legislature may carve out of a single transaction several crimes and this seems to be the effect of the statute in this case. Yet it is certain that morally speaking there was but one crime committed criminal transaction—in taking this and appropriating its contents and as the has carved two offenses out of this tion, for both of which the defenda been found guilty, the court in the measure of his punishment to take that fact into conside

Therefore in consideration of the p the defendant is sentenced for the c embezzling the mail sack entrusted to h to five years' imprisonment at hard lab being the maximum punishment prov the offence and for the crime of tak gold dust from the sack already so emb he is sentenced to one year's im ment at hard labor, that bein minimum punishment provided the offence and it is also ordered th judgment be executed in the penitenti this State

MEETING OF THE NATIONAL REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE

On Thursday January 1 th the Republican National Committee will meet at the Arlington House Washington City, to fix the time and place of holding the convention to nominate candidates for President and Vice President The proceedings of this meeting will be watched with unusual interest as there is an unusually large number of persons who expect to be governed in their vote at the election by other circumstances than the single fact of a party nomination While all except ing possibly a few impracticables recognize that something is due to party organization and that some compromises ought to be made for the sake of co operation between those who agree in the main as to the best policy of national administration, there is a general repudiation of the fatal theories that prevailed a few years ago which made the success of the party the first and greatest consideration, to which all other objects must give way Thousands of people all over the country who were for their party right or wrong in those times are for their party now with the proviso that their party must not be too far out of the path which they think it ought to follow The change of public sentiments in this respect is an element that can not be overlooked with impunity by any of those who have in hand the management of party organizations It must be recognized in every step from the meeting of the committee to the adjournment of the convention We hope the committee will bear in mind that they are expected this time to represent the people, in part at least, and not the politicians altogether

WHY DOES THE PROSECUTION OF THE MAIL ROBBERS HALT?

Since the acquittal of Mrs. Montgomery and the publication of the testimony of Dan Smith concerning the mail robbery there is considerable inquiry as to how it is that Jack Montgomery is not apprehended and put on his trial Indeed, it was a rare thing after the first trial, and before Mrs Montgomery was acquitted or Dan Smith's testimony taken to hear any one express a doubt that Montgomery was equally guilty with the defendant The testimony of the prosecution without the support of Mrs Montgomery's testimony, was enough to put him on his defense But Mrs Montgomery testified positively to his connection with the transaction, and all the circumstances corroborate better with that theory and with the truth of Dan Smith's story than with any other theory of the case Certain facts which before that time appeared inexplicable, were rendered altogether rational and natural when the light of Dan's testimony fell upon them Such, for instance, was the fact admitted by Montgomery, of the stolen dust being carried from Oak Grove nearly to Roseburg, in a buggy of which the only occupants were Smith and Montgomery, and being hidden near Roseburg, and yet nothing being said about it by Montgomery If the two were partners in the crime, as Smith says they were, there is nothing extraordinary in the fact referred to The same might be remarked of other circumstances detailed in the evidence

A jury has decided that Mrs Montgomery is not guilty of the part with which she was charged, in the commission of the crime She is no longer the wife of Montgomery having been divorced at his suit She is therefore competent to testify as to his connection with the crime Except as to communications between him and her while the relation of husband and wife existed, she is under no restraints whatever With her testimony and the corroborating circumstances to say nothing of the testimony of Carlwell and Dan Smith there could hardly be a possibility of his escaping But he is allowed to go at large People ask why this is We can only repeat the question why is it? Why is not Montgomery against whom there is as strong a case now as there ever was against Dan Smith, brought before the Commissioner and held to answer

The Republican papers of the East are not unanimous in their opinion of the propriety of the removal of Gen. Henderson for his reflections on the President in his speech against the St Louis whisky thieves The New York Times thinks the removal was eminently proper remarking not without reason that if the President had suffered the matter to pass without any manner of protest, that fact would have been seized upon by the opposition press as proof that the reflections of Henderson were just and therefore unanswerable. The Pittsburg Dispatch a Republican paper of the straightest sect, is of opinion that while the remarks of Henderson were uncalled for and improper it would have been much the better course for the President to have taken no notice of them This view is entertained likewise by the Boston Advertiser one of the most prudent and safe of the Republican journals It will most likely be seen yet that the removal of Henderson was a mistake But it is always easier to see where a mistake has been committed in a matter of such delicacy than to see in advance just what is best to be done

Mr George F Seward the successor of Benjamin P Avery as minister to China is a nephew of the late Secretary Seward and under him became thoroughly acquainted with the Department of State For some years he has occupied various official positions in the United States service in China the last being that of Consul General at Shanghai which is the next position in rank to that of minister to the Empire He is familiar with the somewhat peculiar diplomacy of Asiatic nations His appointment is regarded by those who speak from personal knowledge as eminently judicious

Capt Sawyer of the ship Orpheus which collided with the Pacific when the latter went down has been arrested on a charge of having purposely wrecked his vessel This is a very serious charge second in importance only to that made against him by some of his sailors at Victoria of refusing to succor the drowning passengers of the Pacific when he might easily have done so That charge seemed, in the light of the evidence which subsequently came to light to be entirely false and it is not improbable this may be simply another product of the malice that inspired that

On motion of Mr Lawrence of Ohio in the House of Representatives just before the recess a resolution was adopted condemning the practice of tacking important legislation on the appropriation bills and directing the Committee on Rules to report a rule prohibiting it Much improvident legislation and much that is positively mischievous is smuggled through Congress by that method It is an abuse which ought never to have been tolerated and which cannot be too soon corrected

Reverdy Johnson expresses the opinion that the purchase by England of a controlling interest in the Suez Canal will lead ere long to the annexation of Egypt to the crown of Great Britain This consummation he thinks will do nobody any harm and will extend the area of an enlightened civilization It will also strengthen the administration of Disraeli by giving it a thorough hold on the confidence of the people

The New York Times is after Judge Donohue sharply for granting a stay of proceedings in the case of Dolan convicted of the murder of Mr Noe last summer The Times thinks the judge entirely misreads the law That is of course possible but the chances are it is the Times instead of the judge that has gone a wool gathering

The two B's, Blaine and Bristow—without much choice as to which has the first place—would make the ticket for the Republicans to win the next Presidential election withal They would make a remarkably strong team on the day of election and a splendid one during the succeeding four years

TUESDAY MORNING, JANUARY 4, 1876.

CITY.

A NEVADA HORSE THIEF CAPTURED.—Three or four months since a gentleman with several aliases, the last one being Smith, quietly walked out from a town in Nevada with a ten mule team. As might naturally be supposed in the course of five or six weeks the team, if not the driver, was missed and an officer dispatched in pursuit. It was found that he had gone to Idaho, and was followed from place to place through the mining towns of that territory, and thence to Portland and finally apprehended near Silverton. He was committed to the Marion county jail for one month to await a requisition from the governor of Nevada. The requisition arrived last Friday, the last day but one for which he was committed, and on Saturday he was brought down to this city to take the steamer for San Francisco. The deputy sheriff who had tracked him with the pertinacity of a sleuth hound was very lenient with his prisoner, taking him to the same hotel and sleeping in the same room. On Saturday afternoon the two were seen playing a social game of seven up, and in the evening both took prominent seats at the New Market Theater. The officer is registered at the St. Charles as A. H. Frohman, and his prisoner as Mr. J. C. Smith. As the officer had business at The Dalles he was unable to take the steamer on Sunday, and Mr. Smith is now registered at the Hotel de Jaffery, where he will be accommodated with more secure if not such luxurious apartments as those just vacated, private theatricals thrown in. He goes below next steamer.

ENCOURAGING BEGINNING.—The Churchman says: "The Bishop stated in his convocation address that he desired to erect a separate building for the accommodation of the children of the Good Samaritan Hospital and Orphanage, and that this could be done for twenty five hundred dollars. A friend of the Bishop's in Philadelphia, heretofore a generous contributor to the missionary work in Oregon, seeing this statement and appreciating the importance of the undertaking, has sent the bishop $800 for this special purpose. This is surely a good beginning, and if $100 more can be secured the outside frame and shell of such a building will be put up as soon as the weather will allow. A building, even so far finished, standing near to the hospital building proper, yet detached, will be of great convenience, furnishing play room, school room and work-shop for the children, and even dormitories if necessary. When once begun it is hoped funds will come in for its completion. Six adult patients and nine children are now cared for at the Good Samaritan, with a prospect of constant increase in both its patients."

SUNDAY SCHOOL ELECTIONS.—Sunday, the annual election of officers for the Sunday School of the First Congregational Church took place, resulting as follows: Superintendent, G. Shindler; Assistant Superintendents, Dr. J. G. Glenn and Mrs. B. A. Lillie; Secretary and Treasurer, W. G. Steel; Librarian, Frank Phelps; Assistant Librarian, Freddie Lowndale. At the Plymouth Sunday School the following officers were chosen: Superintendent, L. M. Parish; Assistant Superintendent, T. C. Humphrey; Secretary and Treasurer, C. B. Talbot; Librarian, P. Dugenay. The following officers were chosen Sunday of the Sabbath School connected with the First Presbyterian Church: Superintendent, Wm. Wadhams; Assistant, J. J. Brown; Secretary, J. D. DuBois; Assistant Secretary, Fred. Gohnan; Librarian, Fred R. Strong; Treasurer, Gen. E. B. Babbitt; Assistant Librarian, A. L. Whitney.

DROWNING OF CHAS WESBERG.—About a week ago we gave an account of the supposed drowning of a deck hand employed on the tug J. C. Brenham, at Astoria. At the time, we were unable to learn the name of the unfortunate man. The Astorian has the following paragraph concerning the accident: "Chas Wesberg, belonging on the steam tug Brenham, it is supposed walked into the bay and was drowned Christmas night, while going on board from shore, as he cannot be found. He was a middle aged man, strong build, reddish whiskers, and weighed about 190 pounds. Mr. Gilbert, of the firm of Gilbert & Mateson, authorizes us to say that $25 reward will be paid for the recovery of the body. Mr. Wesberg was a native of Sweden."

AN OVERDOSE.—Sunday evening an exciting rumor was in circulation on the streets that Prof. W. L. White, of the Commercial College, had attempted his life by taking laudanum. Such, we are informed, was not the case. Mr. White has been quite sick for some days and he took some laudanum as a narcotic, and by accident administered an overdose, which would have proved fatal had it not been timely discovered and medical aid summoned. He is now considered beyond danger.

THE LOCKS AND BASIN.—The following boats are now lying above the locks, unable to come down, owing to the high water: Ohio, City of Salem, Willamette Chief, Gov Grover and Champion. No steamers have passed through the locks since last Thursday. Before it is deemed safe to open the locks the river will have to fall about one foot. The O. S. S. Co's boats have not been able to enter the basin for several days, owing to the high stage of the water.

HELD TO ANSWER.—Yesterday afternoon in police court, the preliminary hearing of the case of State vs Andrew J. Johnson was had. Defendant is charged with an assault on the person of Robert Small with intent to kill. After a hearing of the evidence in the case, the court held defendant to answer the charge before the grand jury. In default of the required bonds Johnson was committed to the county jail.

THE GARIBALDI.—This vessel, which sailed from this port about three months since for Hongkong via Sandwich Islands, is reported having returned to the Islands owing to sickness among the passengers, almost entirely composed of Chinamen. Several deaths are reported. She touched at the Islands last November. We cannot vouch for the truth of the report, but give it as it reached us as a rumor.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.—The annual election of the Hibernian Benevolent Society took place at their hall last evening, when the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, W. Mulchay; vice president, P. J. Maloney; secretary, M. Monnoyhan; assistant secretary, M. J. Gleason; treasurer, T. Brandon; color bearer, H. P. Harte.

HIGH WATER.—The recent heavy rains have swollen the streams in Washington county so that the bridges in many instances are in great danger of being swept away. The bridge between Cornelius and Centerville across a slough, is gone. The water in all the streams is very high.

ELECTION.—Friday evening Hassalo Lodge No. 15, I. O. O. F., elected the following officers for the ensuing term: George Hartness, N. G.; Andrew Hill, V. G.; W. D. Hants, R. S.; A. W. Gamble, P. S.; A. G. Walling, T.; and Daniel Sprague, Trustee for three years.

PORTLAND LIGHT BATTERY.—At the annual election of the Portland Light Battery the following officers were chosen: Captain, Thos. Mountain; lieutenant, Orin Smith; treasurer, Thomas Mountain; secretary, Orin Smith; armorer, James Wall.

MCCORMICK'S ALMANAC.—This valuable annual has been laid upon our table. The volume before us contains many interesting statistics and will prove a valuable acquisition to the counting house and household.

RESIGNED.—Prof. J. Nichols, we learn, has resigned his position as assistant teacher in St. Michael's College. His position will be filled by Mr. J. T. Sheilds, who is now on the way thither from the East.

ACQUITTED.—In the U. S. district court Friday Wm. Thompson, who was on trial charged with introducing liquor into an Indian country, was acquitted.

AMUSEMENTS.

FIREMEN'S BENEFIT.—This evening the Lewis Bros. Culmination Troupe will give a complimentary benefit at New Market Theater to the fire companies of Portland. On the occasion a fine silver trumpet valued at $7[illegible] will be presented the fire company selling the largest number of tickets. A number of novel and attractive features will be introduced this evening, among which will be a violin solo by Prof. Caegle, who enjoys a reputation of being one of the finest violin performers on the coast.

THE GRAND OPERA.—Verdi's ever popular opera of Il Trovatore was rendered last evening by the new opera troupe at New Market theater to a large, and we may say one of the most fashionable audiences which has ever assembled within the walls of that building. Of the plot of the opera it is needless to speak, as it has been given briefly before. Miss Marston appeared in the leading role of Leonora, a character which she sustained passably well. Although not free from defects, Miss Marston's interpretation of the music was in the main true and effective. The rendering of some of the most florid passages was easy and brilliant, evincing much study and careful training. With no intention of giving offense we must say that her vocalization generally was much superior to her acting. The most feeling passages, however pathetically rendered, are measurably shorn of their beauty, strength and effect when not accompanied by kindred emotions represented by the gestures and bearing of the artiste. However, Leonora is one of the most thoroughly trying operatic roles known, and taxes to the utmost extent the resources of the artiste, not only as to the faithful and effective interpretation of the music, which is wonderfully difficult, but the passion and emotion. In justice to Miss Marston we must accord to that lady a full measure of praise for the manner in which she sustained the difficult part assigned her in the opera. As Count de Luna, Signor Contini appeared to marked advantage. His voice was a shade husky, no doubt attributable to climatic effects, but his impersonation of the Count was otherwise faultless. Every gesture and pose was natural, easy and graceful. His acting throughout was not only strong, intense and at times brilliant, but characterized by that of the finished artiste. Mr. Stein personated "Manrico" in a style complimentary to himself and, we believe, satisfactory to the audience. He was not in very good voice, owing to a severe cold which he contracted a few days ago. A large degree of allowance should be made for this young artiste, when it is known that yesterday morning he could scarcely speak above a whisper. Mr. Stein's voice was remarkably rich, clear and sonorous, considering all the disadvantages under which he sung, and his acting was graceful and effective. We would take the liberty of suggesting that a little more care be exercised in preparing the stage. Last evening there were several inexcusable blunders in the stage appointments, which in the future should be avoided, as they detracted much from the effect of the opera. During the evening, Miss Valerga appeared and sung "Angel's Serenade," with a viola obligato by Professor Waud, also a brilliant waltz by Arditi. This young lady possesses a clear musical voice, which evinces a remarkable degree of culture. She was heartily encored at the close of the selections, but modestly declined to favor the audience. The opening night was not as propitious as could be desired, but as it was the first appearance of the new troupe many allowances should be made. They are to appear three times before this public, and will no doubt improve and afford each successive evening a greater degree of satisfaction. Wednesday evening the troupe will appear in one act of "Don Pasquale" and one act of "La Traviata."

BRIEF NOTES.

River is again receding.

St. Andrew's society meeting this evening.

Gas consumers will notice extension of time.

The O. S. N. Co's line was down yesterday beyond Celilo.

The "Ladies' Relief Society" will meet to-day at 2 o'clock.

A gentleman just from Astoria informs us that the bar is very rough.

We understand that the steamer Ajax will not sail from San Francisco until Wednesday.

From Sunday evening to yesterday morning the river, at Oregon City, fell three inches.

Mr. J. A. Crouch was engaged yesterday in repairing the lines of the fire alarm telegraph about the city.

The ship City of Tangier is reported off the bar, and has a pilot on board. She will probably cross over to-day.

A large force of carpenters under the superintendence of Mr. John Holland are employed in repairing the barge Autocrat.

The Columbia river was so very rough last Friday that the steamer Emma Hayward could not effect a landing at Cathlamet.

The telegraph line between this city and St. Jo, which has been prostrated for several days past, is again in good working order.

The steamer Gussie Telfair has been pumped out. All the damaged freight will soon be removed and a careful inspection made of the hull.

There will be a public installation of the elected and appointed officers of Orient Lodge, I. O. O. F., at their hall, East Portland, next Thursday evening.

Some days ago the wharf boat Webfoot at Celilo broke loose from her moorings, drifted around against some rocks and was sunk. Mr. Holland came down with a force of men and succeeded in raising her without much difficulty.

Until the Columbia river shall fall all efforts to raise the steamer Yakima have been suspended. It is the intention of the O. S. N. Co. to raise the submerged craft as soon as the stage of the water will permit, tow her down to Celilo, place her on the ways and repair the hull.

BARK WINDWARD A TOTAL WRECK.

The following telegram was received last evening:

PORT TOWNSEND, Jan. 2, 1876.

The bark Windward went ashore at Useless Bay, and is a total wreck. She was loaded with lumber and bound for San Francisco.

No further particulars were given. The Windward was built in 1855 at Booth Bay, Maine. The material of which the hull is composed is mixed, fastened with copper and iron fastenings. Her registered capacity was 495 tons, draft 17 feet. She was remetaled in September, 1866. Her dimensions were: length 112 feet, beam 30 feet, hold 17 feet. Full particulars of the disaster will doubtless be received to-day.

LECTURE OF PROF. HARVEY.

A large audience assembled at Good Templar Hall Sunday evening to listen to Prof. Harvey's lecture on the Correlation of the Forces of Nature, and were highly entertained. He was listened to throughout with careful attention and was frequently applauded.

Prof. Harvey said the principal object of his lecture would be to give the name and a short sketch of the career of the illustrious man to whom is due the honor of having first clearly demonstrated the great fundamental physical cause of all things as they are now understood. The name of this man is Benjamin Thompson, once a very poor New England boy who taught school a hundred years ago in Rumford, now Concord, New Hampshire, but now one of the brightest names in the annals of science of modern times, and not one in fifty of his countrymen know anything about him. The discoveries of Newton were far less important and infinitely less revolutionary in their effects on science at large than is the great discovery of Thompson that heat is a mode of motion. His discovery was so far in advance of the age in which he lived that it remained almost in abeyance for more than fifty years, but few even among the leading minds of the world could comprehend the force and nature of it, and it is only within the last thirty years it has received the consideration it is entitled to. Meyer of Heilbronn and Helmholtz of Königsberg, in Germany, Joule of Manchester and Grove of London, in England, Séguin in France and Colding in Denmark, all independently and without communication with each other, have within the last thirty years labored to establish these views of Thompson.

The discovery of Franklin that electricity and the dreadful thunderbolt are identical in their nature was but trivial in its ulterior effects on knowledge and modes of thought compared to those already brought about and still to be brought about by the greater discovery of Thompson. He may be truly said to be a prophet without honor in his own country. Born at Woburn, Massachusetts, in 1753, had a common school education and afterwards became a school teacher. He was known as Count Rumford in Europe, which title he selected in honor of his native town. He was the founder of the Royal Institute for the promotion of science. Lavoisier was the first to establish the important doctrine of the indestructibility of matter, and Count Rumford laid the foundation for the more important, though less obvious, doctrine of the indestructibility of force. His fame will in the future rest on this discovery. Before his time heat was supposed to be a material substance, and was called the fluid matter of heat, or caloric. Rumford's experiments demonstrated that heat was a mode of motion. Just fifty years later, Joule and Meyer independently and by a most delicate and elaborate series of experiments, determined that 772 pounds falling one foot would beget heat sufficient to raise one pound of water one degree of Fahrenheit's thermometer. This law is known as the mechanical equivalent of heat. Rumford regarded the power of animals due to their food, therefore as having a definite source and not created, and thus he applied his views of force to the organic world. What he showed to be true of heat, is now generally admitted to be true of other physical forces, light, electricity, magnetism and chemical attraction. They are all now viewed as having a definite quantitative relation to each other and to heat. The old notion of imponderable material agents, as an electric fluid, and caloric fluid, are, with the corpuscular theory of light, among the things of the past.

Forces are causes, and all force ultimately resolves itself into a transition of heat from a warmer to a colder medium. Were the universe of one temperature, there could be no interaction of the forces, no vitality, no growth, no motion, as long as that state of things continued, save only those motions that come from gravitation. In all phenomena of nature we see this almighty force—HEAT—and the source of this the Sun. Every motion and change that takes place upon this earth, even those motions or actions which constitute life and thought, can be traced to this bright luminary.

The sun is now proved to be an enormous globe of heated matter that incessantly pours out its life bestowing rays in all directions. The heat of the sun, like that of every other body, is thought to be caused by a vibratory motion among its molecules, or its ultimate particles. These vibrations are supposed to be communicated to a medium called ether, that fills all space and carries the undulations of heat and light with the enormous rapidity of 12,000,000 miles in a minute. In the plant these vibratory rays impinge upon and become absorbed and converted into another kind of force (chemical affinity), by means of which the plant seizes upon its appropriate nutriment, and the solar heat and light for a time disappear. They may become stored up in the wood of the plant for many years, or the plant being converted into coal, the force that contributed to its growth may be locked up for countless centuries. But it is the law of nature that all the forces that are absorbed in building up a compound are again let loose upon its decomposition, to be given out in the same or some other form of force that is the precise equivalent of the amount first used. An animal is but a machine, the power of which is due to its food as the power of a steam engine is due to its fuel. The vibratory or shivering motion of particles of matter may be so intense as to break down the solid structure of that body and make it flow, or it may go still further and dissipate it into vapor. Force is progressive in its manifestations like the material universe, of which it is the exponent and the supplement—passing gradually from gravitation, the most elementary, up to intelligence, the highest form of it we know anything about. First, magnetic, electric or chemical phenomena appear to have but little in common with each other or with those of light and heat. It was natural that we should suppose essentially different causes for the apparently different phenomena. Examination proves this to be artificial and not founded on the nature of things.

A sufficiently heated body gives out light, motion may be transformed to electricity by certain frictions, and again this electricity may take the form of heat, light, motion and magnetism. Wherever one force makes its appearance there is a certain portion of another used up, and the one force takes the place of the other but always after a certain determined proportion. The equivalent proportions that exist between heat and motion and also the combining proportions in which the different kind of elementary matter unite in the formation of chemical compounds are determined, but the equivalents of heat, light, electricity and magnetism are yet to be fully ascertained.

Continual change is the order of the universe; science as well as religion protests against the eternal duration of all things as they now exist. Were our earth to be suddenly stopped in its career around the sun it would immediately give out as much heat as the combustion of fourteen such globes of solid coal, and it must consequently flash all at once into a most intensely heated vapor; or were it to fall perpendicularly into the sun it would supply that body with as much heat as it now gives out in one hundred years. The amount of unaggregated matter rotating within the limits of our solar system no doubt immeasurably exceeds that which has been aggregated into planets, asteroids and moons; the amount of force reserved in this vast rushing mass of diffused matter must be amply sufficient to supply life and activity to our system of worlds for millions of ages to come.

CAPITAL NOTES.

Our regular correspondent sends the following:

A number of gentlemen were out calling on New Year's Day, the ladies in many instances keeping open houses.

The recent high water has again subsided, leaving nothing but dilapidated sidewalks as a gentle reminder of what was.

Recent telegrams from the Postoffice Department order the placing of mail service on the Albany express train, giving us two mails daily between Portland and Salem.

Tom Lewellyn, a well known fireman of this city, died at the hospital in your city on Friday last. His remains were brought to this city and buried to-day by the members of the Salem fire department.

S. Krolick, a tailor of this city, having died very suddenly in his shop on Commercial street on Sunday evening, the coroner, Dr. J. R. Cardwell, was notified of the fact. Unable to be present, H. A. Johnson, J. P., acted in that capacity, summoned a jury which after taking testimony returned the following verdict: "We, a coroner's jury summoned to inquire into the cause of the sudden death of S. Krolick, the body now lying before us, after examining several witnesses and having the evidence of Dr. J. Shiels, believe the immediate cause of the death of the deceased to have been suffocation, induced by a low state of vitality brought on by excessive use of intoxicating liquors. Signed, W. W. H. Waters, L. S. Olinger, Wm. Appleby, H. B. Day, G. Pepper, [illegible]." The deceased has a son residing in New York City.

That misfortunes never come singly is painfully illustrated in the bereavements which have just visited the family of Hon. E. I. Bristow, editor of the Salem Daily and Weekly Mercury. His son, James K., a promising young man of about 22 years of age, died on Saturday evening about 6:30 o'clock, after a brief but painful illness of about one week's duration. Sunday morning their youngest daughter, Hattie E., passed away, she having been ailing for some time, although her illness was not considered serious until a few hours before her death. We were somewhat intimately acquainted with "Jimmie," as he was familiarly known, and in all our associations with him have we found him an honorable, exemplary young man, addicted to no bad habits and thoroughly respected by all who knew him. He ever proved himself a dutiful son, a kind brother and a firm, steadfast friend. The doubly bereaved family have the sympathy of a large circle of friends in their deep affliction. The funeral of both will take place to-day under the auspices of the Odd Fellows, of which Order he was an honored member. The printers also will attend the funeral obsequies in a body.

CARD.

The ladies in charge of the lunch given at the rooms of the Y. M. C. A. on New Year's Day desire to express their thanks to Mr. George Green, for his courtesy in tendering them the use of his room for the day, to Mr. George Steele for the loan of a piano, and also to the numerous ladies and gentlemen who so kindly aided them in their entertainment, both by their personal assistance and by furnishing supplies for the table.

The Y. M. C. Association also desire to express their obligations to Mr. Carr, agent for Gray's music store, for the use of a fine Burdett organ for three months.

SOCIAL EVENTS.

One of the most enjoyable sociables of the season was held on Saturday evening last at the residence of Mrs. Woodward, on the corner of Sixth and Oak streets. The guests were principally the young folks connected with the Baptist church of this city, and they were entertained with music, songs and games until the "wee sma' hours."

Collectors will find Fabre & Barnes' Central Market a convenient place to take lunch.

Don't be bothered with badly fitting collars, but wear the Elmwood. Every one you put on fits right and looks well.

The steamer Ajax brought another large invoice of goods for BECK & WALDMAN, who are determined to keep their customers supplied with the very latest styles as introduced in the San Francisco market. It is really astonishing to see the immense stock carried by this house, when we consider the fearful hard times and people are naturally disposed to hold on to coin. But the firm have made their purchases at an advantage and can offer their customers rare bargains. Call and satisfy yourself, and recollect the place, Front and Washington streets.

THAT DREADFUL AFFLICTION EPILEPSY, CONVULSIONS, [illegible] soon becomes firmly fixed by habit, each attack increasing the liability to a return and adding greatly to the difficulty of arresting the disorder. In the absence of proper treatment, a mere faintness with slight muscular twitchings occurring at long intervals in time become violent convulsions of great frequency—the patient generally sinking into imbecility. If relief is obtainable at all after the disease is thus firmly seated, it must be from some treatment which is permanent in its effects, and which not only has a tendency to suppress the attacks but which will remove the morbid tendency to relapse. TWEED

The statement in the Tribune that many persons who are considered to be well informed in regard to the Tweed case believe that negotiations have been in progress for the restitution by Tweed of a portion of the money stolen by him and the other members of the ring from the city and that when these negotiations were so far completed as to admit of his returning in safety he would come forth from his hiding place caused a good deal of comment throughout the city There were some who supported the statement on the ground that it was known to them that Tweed more than a year ago was willing to compromise by the payment of $2,000,000, provided all suits against him were discontinued by the authorities. It is asserted that had it not been for the advice of his counsel he would have agreed to such compromise, and that there is also reason to believe that the authorities would have agreed to this course as the best under the circumstances Those who are conversant with Tweed's business affairs say that he could better have paid $3 000 000 one year ago than $1 000 000 now His uptown real estate has depreciated greatly Several valuable pieces of property in which he had invested large sums have been sold out under foreclosure, to satisfy the mortgages, and have brought hardly enough to cover the mortgages and cost of sale. In the sale of his Fifth avenue house he also lost largely Stocks, of which he is a heavy holder have depreciated Moreover, the demands of counsel fees and costs of various kinds have been very great, and to raise money to satisfy their demands he has been forced to sell property very much below its real value.

There are other persons besides those mentioned who believe that Tweed has left the country They base their belief on the fact that Tweed's counsel have exhausted nearly all the resources of the law that Tweed has been of late very nervous and alarmed over the prospect of being stripped of all his property and then sent to Sing Sing on one or more of the criminal indictments which have been found against him It was evident to him the people say that if he even continued the litigation for one or two years longer he would have no property left and so he deemed the wisest plan was to run away He could have done this any time during the past two years it is asserted, by means of money, but not until the recent decision of the Court of Appeals did he lose hope that he would escape through the technicalities of the law

From what can be ascertained it appears that the negotiations are in the incipient stages and none of the persons interested are willing to give any possible information At the sheriff's office yesterday it was stated that there was nothing new concerning Tweed On the question of Tweed's compromising the suits against him the officials professed to have nothing to communicate One of the counsel connected with the case of Peter B Sweeny stated that so far as Sweeny and Connolly were concerned, he had not been aware of any proposal to compromise Still he was not prepared to give a positive contradiction, as possibly negotiations might have been carried on without his knowledge All he could say was he knew nothing of them Wheeler H. Peckham declined to give any information positive or negative, on the subject

There was a rumor in circulation yesterday that a dispatch had been received in this city that Tweed had been landed at Jamaica by the bark Lord Clarendon, on which it was at one time alleged that he had sailed The rumor was not credited at the sheriff's office nor by certain friends of Tweed It was deemed exceedingly improbable that he would land anywhere on British territory —N Y Tribune

Barbara Freitchie's identity has been settled at last by a writer in the Chicago Tribune who has visited recently the scenes made memorable by her life He saw the flag which she unfurled at her window, and obtained possession of the cane which Barbara was accustomed to use in her daily walks and with which she had been known to push off the gray coats as they sat on the curb-stone No such scene occurred between Barbara and the rebel commander as is related in the poem the Southern troops never having passed by the street where she lived The writer gives this version of the way in which the story came to Mr Whittier's ears A grand nephew of Mme Freitchie was then a clerk in Washington and told some story of the venerable lady's patriotism within the hearing of Mrs E D E N Southworth, and the latter communicated it to Mr Whittier In reply to an inquiry Mr Whittier sent the following note "I thank thee for thy letter and the accompanying paper * * * My original account of Barbara Freitchie was from Mrs Southworth and the poem is a pretty close transcript of it"

In local circles matters have worn a very dull aspect during this first business day of the new year The monetary situation is one of a very moderate degree of ease, and but few calls for accommodations so far In fact the season for money lenders has been one of only a limited amount of prosperity the demand at no date since winter began having shown the same volume or activity exhibited either last winter or the preceding one The new year finds the financial resources of our home market quite ample to meet all the anticipated requirements of business and should the markets of demand for our exportable commodities prove favorable between now and summer a full average amount of activity may be looked for in that interval and a greater degree of prosperity realized than has attended the business of the past few months.

The mails bring us intelligence of no unusually exciting character concerning commercial or financial affairs on the Atlantic seaboard The winter up to Christmas had been comparatively mild east of the Rocky mountains and transportation and travel, by land and water less interrupted than common Trade matters were slowly gaining in strength, and with no serious financial disaster which some of our exchanges seem to fear may be precipitated by some supposed hasty action Congress may take in regard to the currency question a good condition of business it is believed will come about when spring opens Manufacturing interests though not as prosperous as could be wished have better prospects than they had in the beginning of 1875

According to latest mail advices from England the manufacturing interests of that country would seem to be in a very bad way The London Telegraph states that a crisis is approaching in the iron trade which will cause a general stoppage of mining operations that one great company has closed all contracts and dismissed all hands that one half of the puddling works in the northern counties have stopped or given notice and that the remainder are working without profits This of course reacts on the coal owners in consequence of the diminished demand for and consumption of their product, and there is thus a general threat of a reduction of twenty per cent in miners wages On the other hand notwithstanding the depression of business there would seem to be certain underlying evidences of real improvement The revenues of the country continue to augment the pauperism of the country has declined and the deposits in the savings banks have in the year ended September 30 1875 increased nearly five per cent.

The Wheat Market

The want of all activity in this branch of trade at this time is noticeable but can be easily accounted for. The leading shippers here have very large quantities on hand enough it is claimed to load all the vessels now due—the foreign and San Francisco markets exhibit no tendency to appreciate and no prospect for any considerable competition in freights all of which go to depress any decided activity and to render exporters indifferent purchasers or unwilling to accede to holders terms The ships to arrive [illegible] and at this writing but one vessel is loading, the [illegible] her cargo [illegible] San Francisco exporters are [illegible] here, and the entire coast business seems very lax at this time Freights from California to English ports have declined to [illegible] 18s, and [illegible] ships are being taken by owners at the rates.

Our wheat [illegible] harvest year so far have been [illegible] tons against [illegible] tons in the corresponding time last [illegible] the estimate of [illegible] 000 tons surplus made about the time of last harvest should prove correct there is yet nearly [illegible] 000 tons in the State for export The exports from January 1st, 1875 to the end of that harvest year were 44 907 89 tons or an aggregate for the harvest year of 1874-75 of 103 830 89 tons The movement must be brisker from this time forward [illegible] a larger surplus must be carried over into next harvest year than ever before
